

DE VALERA WINS VICTORY AS DAILEY MEETS IN SECRET

COLLINS PROTESTS SESSION

The recalcitrant was from Tipperary. De Valera did not take his accustomed seat beside a Griffith and Collins when he entered. Instead he crossed to the opposite side of the room and took a seat among his supporters.

Despite the failure of the Irish Roman Catholic prelates to adopt a resolution urging ratification, the belief was general that the pact would be approved.

Thousands of persons, most of them bearing flags, surrounded the National University building as Dailey Eireann met. They evidently hoped a decision would be forthcoming quickly, and that announcement of it would be made before the afternoon was over.

There was an undercurrent of fear that if the opposition under de Valera should be successful war might break out again in Ireland.

De Valera arrived.

Cathal Brugha, one of the Sinn Fein ministers supporting de Valera, and Austin Stack, who has frequently acted as courier for the Sinn Fein during the peace negotiations, rode to the building on bicycles.

De Valera drove up in a red automobile. He was accompanied by a secretary. As he made his way through the crowd to the doorway the Sinn Fein chieftain frequently raised his hat in answer to the applause. He wore a black hat and a long black Ulster jacket, and a bulging brief case in his right hand.

De Valera's face was lined and careworn, showing the strain he had been under during the past week. He walked erect, however, and with a firm stride. He looked straight ahead and the stern gleam in his eyes showed he was ready for battle.

Arthur Griffith entered shortly after de Valera. He seemed to be embarrassed by the cheers of the crowd and hurried toward the doorway at topmost speed.

Michael Collins and the other Irish republican chiefs arrived last. They did not seem perturbed either by the applause or by the prospect of a fight in Dailey Eireann.

Dazzling Splendor

Marks Opening of Parliament by King

By EARLE C. REEVES, International News Service.

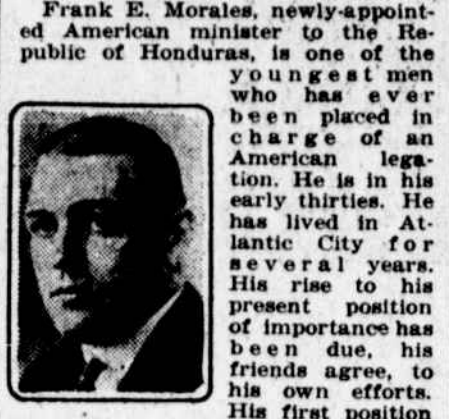

LONDON, Dec. 14.—"It is my earnest hope that, by the articles of agreement now submitted to you, the strife of centuries may be ended and that Ireland, as a free partner in the commonwealth of nations forming the British Empire, will secure the fulfillment of her national ideals," said King George in opening today the extraordinary session of parliament, which was convened to consider the Irish peace treaty.

Speech Is Brief.

The king's speech was brief and dwelt on his hope that the turbulence of Ireland had, after long centuries, given way to tranquility.

"It was with heartfelt joy," continued King George, "that I learned of the agreement which was reached."

New U.S. Diplomat Was Once A Fireman In Atlantic City

Frank E. Morales, newly-appointed American minister to the Republic of Honduras, is one of the youngest men who has ever been placed in charge of an American legation. He is in his early thirties. He has lived in Atlantic City for several years. His rise to his present position of importance has been due, his friends agree, to his own efforts.

His first position in Atlantic City was as a member of the fire department. While thus engaged he improved his opportunity by studying stenography, and in a short time qualified himself for a secretarial position in the city hall. His abilities were soon recognized, and he was promoted steadily. For the past five years he has been engaged in the export business in Latin America and is fully acquainted with the customs of the country to which he is going as diplomatic representative. He has devoted much time to the study of international politics, and his mental equipment, combined with his engaging personality, assures his success.

after negotiations protracted over many months. These negotiations affected not only the welfare of Ireland, but British races throughout the world.

"I have summoned you to meet at this unusual time in order that the agreement which was signed by my ministers and the Irish delegates may at once be submitted for your approval."

"No other business will be brought before you at the present session."

There was an unprecedented spirit of joviality in the House of Commons. When Premier Lloyd George entered, he crossed the floor and the speaker entered, with his political foe, former Premier Asquith. The pair linked arms and walked behind the speaker's chair for private conversation. Apparently their political feud of five years' standing had ended.

Following an old custom dating back to the days of Guy Fawkes, Beefeaters from the Tower of London, carrying torches, searched the vaults under both houses for hidden bombs or assassins before the session opened. The Beefeaters—or tower guards—were dressed in Middle Ages costume and carried halberds.

A Scene of Splendor.

The doubleture of a speech from the throne and the opening of the House of Commons filled the galleries to overflowing. Unexampled splendor marked the opening. The scene in the House of Lords was especially brilliant.

King George and Queen Mary rode in state from Buckingham Palace. The streets through which they passed were lined by 7,000 guardsmen, including the Irish guards, resplendent in scarlet and gold uniforms.

The royal coach was drawn by eight jet-black horses and was flanked by outriders wearing red coats. The body of the coach was entirely of glass, giving the spectators a perfect view of the occupants. In the boxes were footmen wearing powdered wigs and ruffled jackets. The King and Queen wore their robes of state and golden crowns. They continuously acknowledged the cheers and greetings of the crowd.

Ronald O'Neill, an adjutant of commoners pending the decision of Dailey Eireann, but the speaker ruled the motion out of order, saying:

"This is a free and independent parliament. We are not concerned about the deliberations of any other body."

Arriving at Parliament building, the King and Queen were announced by heralds with silver trumpets.

Galleries Filled.

"Gentlemen of the bodyguard" leaned on ancient-looking spears as King George and Queen Mary passed through the doors and down the hallway to the royal rest rooms.

The galleries of the house of lords were filled with spectators wearing evening clothes which blazed with jewels. Further color was given by the uniforms of officers and the gold and lace of the diplomatic corps. Judges, wearing ermine and scarlet robes, occupied a place before the golden throne. The men, who wore plain evening clothes, were conspicuous amidst the riot of color.

King George took his place upon the throne and the session had been opened and the queen sat at his right hand.

DOMINION RULE FOR INDIA IN TEN YEARS PREDICTED

Domination rule for India within ten years was predicted today by W. S. Srinivasa Sastri, delegate from India to the Armament Conference. He declared the future rule of India would be similar to that now governing Australia and Canada.

"Experience has shown Britain that domination rule for India is perfectly safe. The Irish developments have hastened the moment for the change, and I confidently expect to see India a British dominion in the next decade," he said.

JAIL TERMS DEMANDED BY HAYNES FOR BREWERS

Prohibition Commissioner Haynes today announced he will seek jail terms for brewers who violate the Volstead Law.

The Commissioner said he has instructed his counsel to institute proceedings against several breweries in Eastern Pennsylvania and to ask the courts to inflict maximum penalties, including jail sentences.

WEST VIRGINIA SOCIETY ARRANGES 'CIDER' PARTY

The West Virginia State society at the regular monthly meeting last night voted an old time "ginger and cider party," to be held at the next meeting, January 19, at Pythian temple.

A musical program was given by Mrs. George Park, the Stewart sisters, Messrs. America and Terrant and Mrs. Irene Chaney. Dancing followed the musical entertainment.

PIG THREE TO RESUME TALK ON NAVY RATES

Hughes, Balfour, and Kato Plan to Take Up 5-5-3 Question.

By GEORGE R. HOLMES, International News Service.

The Big Three of the conference—Hughes, Balfour and Kato—will resume their discussions late today over the all-important question of naval ratio, with indications pointing strongly to Japan's acceptance of the 5-5-3 ratio and her retention of the battleship Mutsu, for which she has waged a determined campaign.

In British quarters today it was intimated that an agreement already has been reached on the proposition of Japan's accepting the 60 per cent ratio, and keeping the Mutsu, but this could not be confirmed in American quarters.

Modification of Ship Program Rests With Hughes and Aides

By International News Service.

The capital ship controversy, the chief factor of delay in the armament conference, narrowed down today to the basic question of whether the Hughes naval program is to be accepted as originally laid down, or whether it is susceptible to slight modifications. The answer rests with Secretary of State Hughes and his advisors.

There has been little progress in the last twenty-four hours. In the private conversations between members of the Big Three—Hughes, Balfour, and Kato—Japan has informed the United States and Great Britain that the 5-5-3 ratio is acceptable if she is allowed to retain the Mutsu, and the post-Japan ships completed under the eight-and-eight building program.

Despite the aversion of both the United States and Great Britain to modification of the original Hughes program, the Japanese are confident that Baron Kato's arguments will prove effective.

Secretary of State Hughes is consulting the American naval advisors at every turn of the negotiations. In last night's conference between the Big Three, Rear Admiral Robert E. Coontz, chief of operations, and Rear Admiral William V. Pratt, both attended.

It can be stated authoritatively that American expert opinion is against the "trade" which Japan has proposed.

MR. ZERO STALKS ARMS MEET FOR HONEST ENVOY

Carries Lantern and Biblical Quotations in Novel Quest.

Diogenes had nothing on Urban Ledoux, the "Mr. Zero" of bread-line fame.

Armed with a lantern symbolic of the seeker for honesty, Ledoux today picked the arms conference "searching for an honest delegate," he said.

Declaring that his original charges, the unemployed ex-soldiers and others, have been cared for as far as possible by him, he said that he now need him now are the delegates to the conference, "for they are not with God."

"The delegates have shortened the sword," he said, "but it is still long enough to kill."

Clad in the rough corduroy clothes and cap of a laborer, Ledoux was a conspicuous figure before the Pan-American building, where the conference holds forth. His huge white umbrella with its circle of red hearts heightened the contrast with his surroundings.

Ledoux is armed with a set of Biblical questions with which he intends to challenge any delegate as to his "honesty" should the delegate approach him. He said he would picket the conference until the end.

WOULD GIVE D. C. XMAS PRESENT OF MORE CARS

Washington street car companies are asked to make their Christmas gift to the public in the form of a "few more street cars," in a letter sent to the Public Utilities Commission today by William McK. Clayton, chairman of the public utilities committee of the Federation of Citizens' Associations.

"Please do so arrange that at least enough space be provided to keep both feet down at the same time," he asks. "The 'seven square feet per passenger' rule, he comments, 'may have eloped with that other coy and shy traffic regulation that conductor's platform on center entrance cars be kept clear; it their honeymoon is unreasonably overstayed. Bring them home and put them to work.'

"Attempt compliance with command 'Move up front,' and you enter Palestine and emerge into Italy, it not in girth."

TUESDAY EVENING CLUB HELPS WELFARE FUND

A contribution of $800 from the Tuesday Evening Club composed of colored men and women, to be used to employ a part-time child welfare worker among the colored families of the District, was announced today by the Juvenile Protective Association of the District.

The Tuesday Evening club was organized for the purpose of building a home for delinquent colored girls, but the proposition proved too big for the club. For several years the club has supported destitute colored children and also has cooperated with the Juvenile Court in the care of several delinquents.

Jazzytorial!

By CLIFF MEREDITH.

THE news you read today is hot, keen strife on all sides afloat; the world appears most surely not blessed by the Yuletide spirit. Japan and China still dispute, Peru and Chili wrangle, while some in Erin still refute that treaty solves the tangle. One headline tells of hunger's spell, wide-spread o'er Volga Valley; another tells how warrens quell (by hunger) prisoner's sally. New York, the center of turmoil, again has raised its curtain upon a bump much like a ball; a building strike seems certain. Some scrapping hits us here at home, the plan the town thinks nifty, was counted out beneath the dome, by anti "50-50." Attacks, disputes and fights and blows! The earth seems gripped with trouble; the peace that with the season goes, looks like a punctured bubble.

DRY MEN SEIZE 1,053 CASES OF STOLEN LIQUOR

Most of Huge Rum Supply Piled in Baltimore Believed Still in City.

The 4,000 cases of whiskey which were stolen from the Canton Distillery at Baltimore, last Saturday, have not left Baltimore, according to officials of the prohibition bureau here. Nearly every available prohibition agent in Washington, Baltimore and Philadelphia, in addition to the greater part of the "flying squadron," under Colonel Nutt, are working on the case.

Colonel Nutt reported to Commissioner Haynes today that his men had recovered 1,053 cases of the stolen liquor. They had captured six large trucks in addition. Information was received early today that a big quantity of the stolen whiskey was hidden in the suburbs of Baltimore and agents were sent out to investigate.

It was pointed out today that the average load of a five-ton truck is 250 cases, and it would take a great many trucks to haul the 4,000 cases. The trucks had left Baltimore, it was said, there would have been a steady stream of trucks, which would have attracted attention along the highways, making escape improbable.

MARSHAL FOCH BIDS GOOD-BY TO AMERICA

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—Wrapped in an American flag, a gift to him from the city of New York, Marshal Foch today was wished "bon voyage" by this city and the nation as he started his return voyage to France. In a farewell address to him, made by Rodman Wanamaker, the Marshal was hailed as the "Napoleons of Napoleons."

Following a ceremony at City Hall, in which the Marshal was again presented by Mayor Hylan with the scroll representing the freedom of the city, Marshal Foch reviewed the Fifteenth regiment of the New York guard.

Th French Marshal carried with him a diamond brooch for Madame Foch, presented to him for her by the city.

DEMOCRACY CONGRESS TO ASK RACE RECOGNITION

Delegates to the conference of the second colored world democracy congress at the John Wesley Zion African Methodist Episcopal Church yesterday adopted resolutions protesting against the "present inequality of races."

Copies of the resolutions, with a request that the delegates be given a hearing before the arms limitation conference, will be submitted today to the various delegates attending the world conference. M. A. N. Shaw, president of the Equal Rights League, presided at the meeting.

SHEEP 'CHUCK FULL' OF GERMS AT LARGE IN DEL.

WILMINGTON, Del., Dec. 14.—Inoculated with germs of tetanus, streptococcus, micrococci and catarrhus, "Billy" Wasserman, a ten-month-old sheep, has been either stolen or strayed away from the Physicians and Surgeons' Hospital. The animal was used by Fred Lizike, the pathologist, as a subject in the study of the action of these germs on the blood.

It is feared by the hospital authorities that the sheep was stolen and used for food and therefore a spread of some of the noxious disease with which its blood has been impregnated.

PACKERS GET CLEAN BILL IN SIDE LINES INQUIRY

Testimony that the Government had no evidence of "combination" among the "big five" packers in their unrelated lines of groceries, fruits, etc., was given today by Walter Y. Durand, economist for the Federal Trade Commission, before the inter-departmental hearing on modification of the recent packer decree.

The hearing is dealing with proposed modification of the court decree which divorced the packers from their side lines.

'TURNED DOWN,' FARMER SLAYS YOUNG TEACHER

Youth Confesses Killing Following Capture by Posse Led By Woman.

By International News Service.

WAUKON, Iowa, Dec. 14.—Earl Throst, a young farmer, confessed today that he murdered Miss Inga Magnuson, pretty twenty-four-year-old school teacher, in her isolated country school house near Dorchester.

"I killed her because she turned me down," Throst told Allamakee county authorities.

Throst was taken at Postville as he was about to board a train. Bloodhounds and deputies under direction of Miss Gunda Martindale, sheriff of Allamakee county, participated in a cross-country chase after Throst.

The second murder mystery concerns the death of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Van Brockland on a farm twelve miles from Postville. They were slain Sunday. Elmer Van Brockland, a brother of the slain young farmer, is under arrest.

Zita's Brother Says She Will Regain Throne Soon

Prince Rene de Bourbon, a member of the Austrian royal family, is being entertained in Chicago by Edward Hines, the lumber king. The prince is a brother of former Empress Zita of Austria. He is firmly convinced that within a short time she and her husband, Karl, will regain the throne and reign over Austria, as 80 per cent of the people are anxious to have them return as soon as possible he says.

At present they are in exile on the island of Madeira, having been banished there by the Entente. The prince is married to Princess Margara, of Denmark. When asked what interested him most in this country, he replied that he was greatly impressed by the tall and stately buildings in Chicago. Having visited this country by way of Canada, he has not as yet had an opportunity of seeing the Woolworth building in New York.

MORSE INQUIRY EXPECTED TO BE SPEEDED UP

Daugherty Due Back Tomorrow To Direct Prosecution of Fraud Case.

By International News Service.

Attorney General Daugherty upon his return to Washington tomorrow from New England is expected to direct the District Attorney Gordon to speed up the presentation of evidence before the grand jury in the case of Charles W. Morse, New York shipbuilder, charged with conspiracy to defraud the Government in connection with war contracts.

At the Department of Justice today, officials said the Government is anxious to avoid delay in securing action by the grand jury. The department expects the examination of the witnesses already subpoenaed will not require more than a week. The Attorney General, it is said, does not want the case of Morse to "hang fire" to await action on any other charges which may be similar to that in the case of Morse.

According to officials, unless some special effort is made to give a clear track to the Morse case the grand jury may be engaged in considering the so-called Morse conspiracy for many weeks and possibly far into January.

MME. D'ALVAREZ APPEARS WITH N. Y. SYMPHONY

Splendid Contralto Voice Heard in Recital at National Theater.

The splendor of the contralto voice of Mme. D'Alvarez sang the great dramatic gifts were dominant in the concert of the New York Symphony Orchestra in the last concert this season to be conducted by Walter Damrosch. Mr. Damrosch leaves for a tour of Europe, where as guest conductor he will direct the leading orchestras abroad, and in his place at the remaining concerts Albert Coats, of London, will be conductor of the New York Symphony in its Washington concerts.

Mme. D'Alvarez sang the "Air de Lia," the gripping mother song from Debussy's "L'Enfant Prodigue," her luscious cello tones bringing out its potent meaning. Here is a contralto of genuine caliber, with a wealth of tone, a range of remarkable compass, and through it all a mellow beauty that holds sweetness in all her singing. Dramatically she gave that forceful cry for the prodigal son, and in widely different mood she proved in the Carmen "Seguidilla" that not since Emma Calve have we had such a Carmen. What a wanton Carmen, with that exuberant laugh! And how nobly, in contrast again, was the Bluet "Agnus Dei," given with the purest lyric beauty of voice. Tschakowsky's greatest song "Ye who have Yearned Alone" will seldom have so rich a rendition.

The orchestra played the great Beethoven Fifth Symphony, making memorable, under Mr. Damrosch, the cello and viola melody of the Andante, the fugue of the Allegro, and in the final movement the double mood in its story of Fate, the tragic reiteration of the central theme and the gaiety that danced through it. Mr.

CUT IN FREIGHT RATES ON COAL OFFICIALLY DENIED

Reports disseminated in various parts of the country that a reduction in freight rates on coal might be expected within the next few days were today characterized as "baseless" by J. D. A. Morrow, vice-president of the National Coal Association.

"Careful inquiry here from all official sources concerned," said Morrow, "justifies the definite statement that no freight reductions on coal shipments may be expected while general rate reductions are under consideration by the Interstate Commerce Commission. This precludes the slightest probability of any such coal freight reductions before next spring."
